The Netherlands Dans Theater and its two siblings — one for young dancers, the other for those over 40 — is on tour here. Choreographer Jiri Kylian, 49, says his over-the-hill dance gang has renewed his enthusiasm.

By Michael Aizenstadt

It's unfortunate that when a dancer starts maturing as a person, he's declining physically, notes Kylian. (SHAUL RAHAMIM)

NDT 3 is No. 1 with him

Dancing is a relentlessly ageist profession. Except for a superstar like the late Rudolf Nureyev or an off-beat artist like Merce Cunningham, declining physical powers eventually force all dancers off the stage.

That was true until Jiri Kylian came up with an idea that offers a second chance to supposedly over-the-hill performers.

Four years ago the artistic director of the Netherlands Dans Theater created a new company called NDT 3, made up entirely of dancers aged 40 and up. The mature ensemble, along with the main Netherlands troupe and its youthful NDT 2, will be giving 10 performances at the Tel Aviv Performing Arts Center, starting tonight.

Kylian, who in 1981 had been feeling tired and used up, had seriously considered quitting his job at NDT. He is a renewed man, thanks to NDT 3.

"Now I feel very happy. Maybe this is my happiest period," the 49-year-old choreographer said during a short promotional trip to Tel Aviv recently.

The slim, mild-mannered Kylian elaborated.

"I'm at the age when, for all the pretty girls in the company, I'm no longer a potential lover but a potential father. I have more distance and more background and I'm more quiet than I used to be; I can say things more quietly."

"I was 28 [in 1973] when I was appointed artistic director of NDT. I started too young. I had no idea what it means."

THE CREATION OF NDT 3 was Kylian's idea, derived from the bitter reality of the everyday life of a dancer.

"On certain occasions you have to say to a dancer: 'Sorry, but good-bye. We don't need you any longer.' It's a disaster most of the time, and very unfortunate that when a dancer starts being mature as a person, his physicality is starting to decline."

"Just imagine if actors would have to stop at age 30. We would have been deprived of some of the greatest acting in the world."

As far as he is concerned, Kylian added, "all ages dance, even the day before you die you are able to dance. I was very reassured to see old people dance tangoes in Argentina. It's like turning pages in a library; there's so much experience there."

Dance, for Kylian, is "life. It's everything. Movement is life, music is movement. I think dance has always been the ugly sister of the arts [in terms of funding and audience appeal], but a lot has changed over the years. After all, it's older than any other art. It's the primary expression of human beings."

NDT 3 consists of only four dancers, which influences the nature of the works they perform.

"There is no multiplication of movement here. In the main company, for example, several dancers will perform the same movement. Here we just focus on that special person. And above that it has to be economically possible, with no subsidy and sponsorships. They live off the box office."

As a choreographer and an artistic director Kylian — who has been here several times, including as a dancer with the Stuttgart Ballet more than 20 years ago — shies away from categorization. The word "eclectic," on the other hand, is one of his favorites.

Still, he does detect a very clear and significant change in his choreographic style in recent years.

"I used to make works that were much more explicit and explanatory, so that you really understood what it is about. Lately, I have been doing works that are like children's drawings, which have only black lines and you have to fill in the blanks with color."

Coming from a strong classical ballet background, Kylian still uses pointe in his dance works, but only in a limited way.

"It really doesn't matter to me so much.

I'm a very eclectic choreographer; I don't have a kind of style."

"I use pointe maybe not so much, but I like pointe work. I also like to dance with boots or with bare feet, but most of my work is done with soft shoes because it gives more possibilities."

His dancers must be versatile enough to dance in all these styles.

"They should be able to do it all for me and also for other choreographers that come in. In 20 years with NDT, I have invited about 60 choreographers to work with us. I have a circle of choreographers who are frequent guests, like William Forsythe, who danced my first ballets in Stuttgart. I like [Naharin] Chad's work very much and also Mats Ek, Nacho Duato and an excellent young choreographer who is a member of the company, Paul Lightfoot. We are a breeding ground for choreography."

IN ITS tour here NDT will perform one of Kylian's very few narrative works, Kaguyahime, based on a 10th-century Japanese legend about a bamboo cutter who finds a baby and raises her as his daughter, only to find out later that she is from the moon and must return there.

He usually opposes narrative, and does not like the combination of literature and dance. As a result, Kylian has never choreographed some of the major classics in the repertoire.

"Most were brilliantly done originally. And although there are many ways to look at things from a very contemporary way, like Mats Ek who has done a wonderful  Giselle and  Swan Lake, I was never attracted by it. I'm not really so interested in narrative works. Kaguyahime is the exception to the rule."

Kaguyahime, its creator explained, "looks like a very big production, but there is practically nothing on stage. We use only what is on the stage anyway — wings, bars, big boxes used for transporting costumes and makeup boxes. We are taking these ordinary things and making something else of them, and that is exciting. And although you can understand the story without knowing the legend, it helps reading it in advance."

The music for Kaguyahime, written by Japanese composer Makoto Ishii, uses original traditional Taiko drums in various sizes.

Music in general is most important to Kylian. "I don't take any shortcuts... Some choreographers use music as wallpaper, which can be very effective, and in fact I did that a few times. But I need music which is very strong on its own. I use it as a partner."

"When I was younger I used the music as an inspiration, and so the movement was almost descriptive of the music. Now they are two different bodies living side by side, like two very good relatives that don't always agree with each other."

Kylian began his ballet training in his native Prague before moving to London in 1967.

"I come pretty much from a classical ballet background. I had a very academic training in Prague — the school was practically a Russian, Soviet school — but I was always attracted to modern, contemporary streams."

Today the concept of "modern dance" means nothing to him. "Much of what we used to call modern dance is very old-fashioned. Now styles are very personal."

When the Netherlands Dans Theater opens its tour tonight at the Tel Aviv Performing Arts Center, it will present the final offering in the Center's first international dance series with the full-length Kaguyahime, which runs until Monday.

The main company's second program, five shorter dance works by Kylian, is scheduled to be performed July 13-16.

NDT 3 presents its unique performance style on July 17. On July 12, NDT 1 and NDT 2 perform at the Karmiel Dance Festival. NDT 2 and NDT 3 also appear at the Jerusalem Theater on July 15 and 16, respectively.

Elusive Iglesias

Iglesias spends up to 1,000 hours a year on a plane between gigs and recording sessions. He is away from his Miami home an average of seven months a year.

The so-called King of Love won't go beyond dropping hints that he has Jewish ancestry, but he's very up-front about his enthusiasm for Israel. The Spanish crooner will give two concerts here next week.

By David Isaacson

OF HIS 71 albums, only four are mainly in English because "I prefer to sing in Spanish, Portuguese or Italian," he says. But a recent disc, called Crazy, is predominantly in English. This eclectic collection, chosen by his producer Albert Hammond, ranges from the Patsy Cline little track through a pasien to Enrico Caruso, "Caruso (Te Voglio Bene Assale)" and the Ode to Joy from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

This shouldn't suggest that he's behind the times. Crazy includes a guest appearance by Sting on the eco-friendly ballad "Fragile."

And his brand new album, La Carretera ("The Highway"), includes a song, "Agua Dulce, Agua Salada," which will probably be released as a single in five remixes of different lengths by no less than the Grammy-winning, sometime Madonna collaborator, remixer Jellybean Benitez.

La Carretera, which Iglesias describes as "Gypsy music, organic," is, he says, No. 1 in several Latin countries. In Spain, he adds, "it sold 250,000 copies in its first week."

IN CONCERT, his crooning voice, matinee-idol looks and congenial charm have a hypnotic effect on his predominantly female fans. Swooning women love to hear him say that his only way of making love is to sing on stage.

For the record, the suave Spaniard has three children — Isabel (24), Julio Jr. (22) and Enrique (20). His marriage to their mother, Isabel, ended in 1979. His trip here will be in the company of Dutch girlfriend Miranda. So to all the girls he loved before: You blew it.

A recent headline in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel proclaimed: "Julio Iglesias may be getting older, but his performances just get better." He characteristically attributes his stamina to his love of his audiences. Being on stage is "a communion with the people," he says.

The latest tribute, from Communist China, is groundbreaking. China Records Corporation is to honor Iglesias with its Golden Record award. It will be the first time CRC has ever made the award to a foreigner, and a concert, to be televised for a "local" TV audience of 300 million, is planned for late October.

But it isn't clear he'll be able to accept the Chinese invitation: If the Chinese were a bit more experienced with this kind of thing, they might have realized that you can't book a star of Iglesias's stature at only a few months' notice. According to his public-relations woman in Malaga, he is set for a major American tour after the current European program.

Not that Iglesias needs any encouragement to perform. "I don't do concerts for money; I do concerts for love. It's a different life on stage. I need to sing, to perform."

That's why he spends "900 to 1,000 hours a year on a plane" between gigs and recording sessions. He's up in the air so often, he says, "I live on the moon." He is away from his Miami home for an average of seven months a year.

Few of his contemporaries can boast a list of singing partners that includes Frank Sinatra, Art Garfunkel, Willie Nelson and Stevie Wonder. And that's just the Anglos on the list. But he won't discuss influences or favorites. All he will admit is that "I learned from them all."

But surely Sinatra was special in some way? Iglesias won't be budged. He simply says: "I love Sinatra — he sings to you and you to him. It was one of the biggest experiences in my life. It was like making love to someone you've loved for 30 years."

If that's how he describes Frank Sinatra, what about women? It turns out that he quite likes women. In fact, "I love women like crazy. It's not bad," he ventures to add, more by way of a moral judgment than as a verdict on his history of conquests.

Today, his role as UNICEF's Special Representative for the Performing Arts gives him the opportunity "to keep my soul in one piece." In keeping with the grandeur of the title, the special rep's duties sound agreeably vague. "I go all over the world to tell people the realities of life," he says.

So the Latin lover has become a diplomat after all? "Wrong. That is not my vocation," he says, with a candor that proves the point.

His hard work is unremitting. "Every day I learn something else. It could be language or how to improve my singing." With self-effacing charm, he adds, "I'm an artist, not a genius."

The fruits of success can be unhealthy, he admits. "It's addictive. I'm addicted," he says, with a trace of hopelessness.

But there is no clinic for those who crave adulation. There's only La Carretera — the highway.

JULY 7 - JULY 13 1995

Cinema Key

- ★★★★★ Must see
- ★★★★ Bravo
- ★★★ Worth seeing
- ★★ Patchy
- ★ Poor
- No star: Wretched

Adina Hoffman

★★★★ AMATEUR - Fresh and affectionate, Hal Hartley's film takes shape with the out-of-body frisson of one of the pornographic stories written by Isabelle (Isabelle Huppert), a freckle-faced ex-nun who claims to be both a nymphomaniac and a virgin. Perhaps the most typical character in Hartley's weird menagerie, Isabelle swaps enigmatic one-liners here with a genial amnesiac and a naive porno star. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

★★ BEFORE SUNRISE - Two beautiful strangers meet on a train from Budapest. He's American and must catch a plane for home at dawn; she's French and heading back to her studies at the Sorbonne. On a whim, he persuades her to disembark in Vienna and spend the night wandering with him throughout the sleepy city. Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy are the modern sweethearts. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Not recommended for children.)

★★ BOYS ON THE SIDE - Three pretty women (Whoopi Goldberg, Mary-Louise Parker and Drew Barrymore) drive across the country. Along the way they laugh, hug, cry, reveal their deepest hopes and fears and paint each other's toenails. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly suggested.)

★★★ BLUE SKY - There's an inevitable quality to Jesse's Lange's great performance as a frustrated army wife in the late Tony Richardson's final film. While her frequent outbursts and the flirtatious apologies that invariably follow dictate the film's manic shape, it's really her husband's (Tommy Lee Jones) silent suffering over time that gives the picture weight. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children not admitted without adult.)

★★★★ CRIMSON TIDE - The drama's primary setting is the interior of an American nuclear submarine, Casper befriends the newest occupant of Whistler Manor, Kat Harvey (Christina Ricci) in the live action comedy adventure 'Casper,' opening nationwide.

where the crusty captain (Gene Hackman) and his thoughtful young second-in-command (Denzel Washington) vie for control of the crew and the deadly warheads. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance strongly advised.)

★★ 1/2 ED WOOD - Tim Burton's movie is designed for buffs of catastrophe, eccentricity and Edward D. Wood Jr., the man considered by many to be the worst film director of all time. This black-and-white biopic isn't meant to serve as an artistic defense of Wood's anti-masterpieces. Instead, Burton and screenwriters Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski glorify Wood's badness itself, holding it up as evidence of his creative gusto. With Johnny Depp hamming absurdly as Wood and Martin Landau as a poignantly doped-up Bella Lugosi. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

★★★ I.Q. - No question, the idea of Albert Einstein playing pockish matchmaker for his brainy mathematician niece and a cheerful auto mechanic is implausible and almost unbearably stupid. This, though, does not seem to be the point of Fred Schepisi's movie. The point is that I.Q. also trips along with a zany, fool-for-love intelligence of a refreshing and not completely explicable sort. The film's goofy charm kicks right in with the cast list. Walter Matthau as Albert Einstein! The role of the Nobel Prize winner suits the actor - to a T. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

★★ 1/2 JUST CAUSE - With its characters, situation and Southern-gothic setting on loan from high-moral standbys like To Kill a Mockingbird and Intruder in the Dust, the first half of this Ame. Glimcher movie tells the straight-ahead story of a poor young black man, accused of a crime he did not commit. The second half is about something else altogether. Despite its affinities with a more thoughtful type of legal drama, Just Cause turns out to be just as cynical and shallow as you might expect of a Hollywood currently in the thrall of O.J.-mania. With Sean Connery and Lawrence Fishburne. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★★★ THE LAST SEDUCTION - Strutting, ensnaring, chain-smoking

and lying are par for the femme-fatale course. But in John Dahl's wickedly funny neo-noir flick, Linda Fiorentino gets to do things - raunchy, violent, twisted things - that would make her black-widow ancestors blush. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★ LEGENDS OF THE FALL - A sprawling family saga set on a ranch in Montana around the time of the First World War, Edward Zwick's movie is self-indulgently lush, mythic trash. Three brothers - among them horny surfer boy Brad Pitt - share a woman, several battles, many scandals, deaths and shoot-outs. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★ MURDER IN THE FIRST - After three years in solitary confinement, an Alcatraz prisoner (Kevin Bacon) stabs a fellow inmate to death. He seizes a shoe-in for the gas chamber until a cocky young lawyer (Christian Slater) decides to put the prison itself on trial for torture. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★ NELL - Dubbed "Bride of Gump" in the American press, Michael Apted's film about a full-grown wild child (Jodie Foster) discovered in the backwoods of Appalachia is the latest and arguably the least subtle in a string of recent movies that confuse nostalgia for a simple past with mental limitation. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

★★★ OUTBREAK - Fast-paced, smart, and camp as a thriller could be, Wolfgang Peterson's film packs the same scary, funny punch of an old-fashioned horror movie. Dustin Hoffman stomps and fumes as a principled army doctor determined to beat a killer virus. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★ POCAHONTAS - Ostensibly based on a true story, Walt Disney's latest animated musical is set at the beginning of the 17th century. It tells the tale of a pretty young Native American woman who falls in love with John Smith, an English settler to Jamestown, Virginia. As the two get to know each other better, they attempt to mediate between their different cultural backgrounds and, ultimately, between their warring people. Good intentions aside, the film is saccharine and annoying. In the interest of constructing a nature-conscious, feminist, anti-imperialist kiddie picture, the filmmakers have necessarily reduced a very complex story of sexual attraction and colonial domination to - what else? - cartoon terms. (The movie exists in two versions: one with English dialogue and Hebrew subtitles; one with Hebrew dialogue. General audiences.)

★★ THE QUICK AND THE DEAD - Sharon Stone doesn't act in Sam Raimi's darkly stylized Western; she poses. It's her most vain and mannered performance to date. And Raimi's slick visual direction only adds to the sense that Stone's horse has wandered way off course. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance very strongly advised.)

★★★ RICHIE RICH - Kids are bound to like this movie because it's full of neat gadgets like the robo-bee (a remote-control stinging critter). Starring real-life rich boy Macaulay Culkin. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. General audiences.)

★★ ROB ROY - Along with the biographical nitty-gritty that screenwriter Alan Sharp has dutifully, and often floridly, transcribed from the real life of Scottish folk hero Robert Roy MacGregor, a random sampling of inspirational truisms are also on hand to spice things up a bit. These approximate how Scarlett O'Hara might have sounded if she'd spoken with a brogue, traded in her hoopskirt for a tartan kilt, and been played by Liam Neeson. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Children under 17 not admitted without adult.)

★★ STARGATE - Ronald Emmerich's Variation on a Theme by George Lucas is so slack, so drab, so utterly devoid of meaning and inspiration, that active attempts to block the film's unique particulars are unnecessary. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

★★ WHILE YOU WERE SLEEPING - In Jon Turteltaub's emphatically upbeat film, Sandra Bullock stars as a lonely transit worker who saves her crush (Peter Gallagher) from an oncoming train and then, while he's in a coma, falls in love with his brother (Bill Pullman). The film does have its occasional sweetness, though this is sweetness on the greeting-card level - ostensibly related to human emotion, but basically designed to sell. (English dialogue, Hebrew subtitles. Parental guidance suggested.)

A touching Jewish-American drama ruined by incongruous casting and awkward directing. (Eretz Yisrael Museum, tonight, 8:30; Sat., 9 - 642259)

Diagnosis: Epidemic of medicine

Penny Starr

If you're a TV addict with a tendency to hypochondria, it's the year of living dangerously. You must be scared of even moving off the sofa with the current rash of hospital dramas. First came ER (Family Channel, Sunday, 10:10 p.m.), a frenzied dash through the emergency ward where doctors on 72-hour shifts run on caffeine. Children with cigarette burns are whisked away from unstable lawyer-mothers, youths with stab wounds are hunted down in the hospital by gun-toting teen gangsters, and inexperienced surgeons seize the scalpel to perform urgent operations on middle-aged men with internal hemorrhages because the chief registrar is off on a date with his floozy.

It's a place where the doctors and nurses and interns have fights with one another in front of patients. It's the kind of place where you can bat the air conditioning won't work during a heat wave. But those dedicated docs will do their duty under the most difficult conditions.

It's frenetic and crazy and busy and bombards you with 15 story lines in 50 minutes. The e-n-n-e-e-r-g-y Chicago Hope. It's mu-u-uch slo-o-ow-er. The doctors deal with slow-acting diseases: Alzheimer's, diabetes and gradual blindness. There are more close-ups of the operations and scenes of brain scans and X-rays. Things take their time on Chicago Hope. They drink less coffee.

Last week was the first episode, in which we were introduced to Adam Arkin (Dr. Aaron Shutt), Mandy Patinkin (Dr. Jeffrey Geiger) and Hector Elizondo (Dr. Philip Watters). We found out that Aaron is in the middle of a divorce from an OR-room nurse, that Jeffrey is cagey about the death of his son and that Philip wants to get rid of aging Dr. Thurmond and his shaky hands. In this week's episode (Channel 2, Tuesday, 8:40 p.m.), the story lines set up last week were continued, there were more gory views of surgery (Jeffrey sings Motown over a bloody saw in a dead woman's chest; Aaron peels the face off a mother of two to get to the brain tumor behind her nose), and we got lots of gallow humor. Old Dr. Thurmond meets Dr. Geiger in the locker room. Thurmond says: "D'you know what I think?" Geiger replies: "No, but if you concentrate I'm sure it'll come to you."

Chicago Hope is what I'd call the old people's drama. It focuses on three central characters and has just a couple of juicy ops a week. ER is for the Tarantino generation, where doctors are hyper, patients are impatient and the poor cameramen never have a moment's peace, with all that running around. They say it's caffeine but in real life it's probably cocaine. I prefer to slip into something more comfortable than to be thrown into the frenzy, but both shows are excellent in their different ways. My only complaint about Chicago Hope (and let's hope it won't happen again) was the totally daff ending of this week's show. We had just been through the face-peeling tumor operation, we had seen the woman's two sons walking outside, we had tears in our eyes when the woman came to, discovered her eyesight had been saved and asked to see her children...

That's when the credits should have rolled. But the writers must have needed to fill another three minutes. So over we go to a mental hospital where Dr. Geiger's wife is strapped into a straitjacket in a huge room with a piano. "I'm sorry I drowned Joey," she says, and asks her husband to play her favorite song for her. Yes, yes, we all know Mandy Patinkin is an excellent stage-actor and singer, we've seen him do Yentl, The Princess Bride and Sunday in the Park with George. But I don't think he needed to be given that bizarre singing opportunity.

IT WAS almost as comical as The Comedy Store (Channel 2, 8:45 p.m., Monday). At the moment the team has a running gag with Lulu, the lady announcer with the mole on Arabic TV. It's Segov does a lovely job of speaking something that sounds like a Semitic language but is in fact a list of TV programs.

"Bobby-JR-Dallas Belle-wa-Sebastian MacGyver min Al-Quds," she says with an Arabic accent. And the thing is that, to non-Arabic speakers, it sounds right. It's like Santa's Little Helper, the dog on The

Simpsons who doesn't understand what anyone is saying but catches the odd word, like "food," "walk" and "good boy."

IT'S NOT that Dudu Topaz is such a "good boy," it's that he's got a team of excellent researchers.

For the last few months, Rashtut Habidur has been following the progress of five students whose grades were so low they would have had to stay back a year at school. They were given grants of NIS 5,000 each to hire private tutors, and during the year Topaz visited each of the students in class to see how they were getting along.

Last Friday, the end of the school year, the five youngsters were called in to see who had done the best. Some grade point averages increased from 59 to 75. Some went from 54 to 62. But the kid who did best was Almog Biton from Dimona, who improved from a 44 percent average to 80 percent. He had new braces on his teeth and was shy about smiling, but it was wonderful to watch him being bashful and proud and embarrassed and generally teenagerly. Everyone who saw the show must have adored him.

Education Minister Amnon Rubinstein came out to present Biton with his prize for doing so well. The Ministry of Education will pay for his first year of university tuition. And if the family isn't able to pay the rest, Bank Leumi will put two more years' worth of tuition into an account on Biton's behalf. And so that he could have a more tangible gift, Bank Leumi also gave him a moped so he can get to school more easily.

These were five lucky kids out of thousands of unlucky ones who haven't had the privilege of getting a grant to hire private tutors. But why should you have to hire private tutors? What if you can't afford one? Why is the Ministry of Education supporting gray education when it should be supporting its own teachers and improving the school system?

And how two-faced of Rubinstein. Just a few weeks ago he was saying what rubbish the programs were on Channel 2, which is why we should all pay NIS 100 a month to watch Educational Television 2.
